UNITED NATIONS TRUCE SUPERVISION ORGANIZATION

HEADQUARTERS: Government House, Jerusalem

DURATION: June 1948 - to date

STRENGTH: Currently is being reduced from 298 to 224 military observers

FATALITIES: 28

CHIEF OF STAFF: Major-General Hans Christensen (Finland)

BACKGROUND

From its early days, the United Nations has been concerned with the Arab-Israeli conflict in the Middle East. Since 1948, there have been five full-fledged wars directly connected with the conflict, and five United Nations peace-keeping operations have been established in the region. Of these, three are still deployed.

The Arab-Israeli conflict has its origins in the problem of Palestine, which was brought before the United Nations early in 1947. At the time, Palestine was a Territory administered by the United Kingdom under a Mandate from the League of Nations, with a population of about 2 million, two thirds of whom were Arabs and one third, Jews.

In November 1947, the General Assembly endorsed a plan for the partition of the Territory, providing for the creation of an Arab State and a Jewish State, with Jerusalem to be placed under international status. The plan was not accepted by the Palestinian Arabs and Arab States.

On 14 May 1948, the United Kingdom relinquished its Mandate over Palestine and the State of Israel was proclaimed. On the following day, the Palestinian Arabs, assisted by Arab States, opened hostilities against Israel.

ESTABLISHMENT OF UNTSO

On 29 May, the Security Council, in its resolution 50 (1948), called for a cessation of hostilities in Palestine and decided that the truce should be supervised by the United Nations Mediator, with the assistance of a group of military observers. This resolution formed the basis for the establishment of the first United Nations peace-keeping operation which became known as the United Nations Truce Supervision Organization (UNTSO). The first group of observers arrived in the region between 11 and 14 June 1948 and were immediately deployed in Palestine and some of the Arab countries.

UNTSO'S OPERATIONS

While UNTSO was initially used in supervising the original truce of 1948, its function was radically altered in 1949 with the conclusion of four General Armistice Agreements between Israel and the four neighbouring Arab countries (Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon and Syria). Its main responsibility then was to assist the parties in supervising the application and observance of those Agreements. Its headquarters was established at Government House in Jerusalem, where it remains today.

Following the 1967 war, UNTSO established two cease-fire observation operations, in the Israel-Syria sector and in the Suez Canal zone. In 1972 a similar operation was set up in southern Lebanon. When UN peace-keeping forces were later deployed, in the Sinai in 1973, on the Golan Heights in 1974 and in southern Lebanon in 1978, UNTSO observers were attached to the new forces to assist them in their operations.

Today, UNTSO observers continue to be assigned to the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force (UNDOF) on the Golan Heights in the Israel-Syria sector. They man eleven observation posts located in the area of separation maintained by the Force and in the vicinity of the lines on both sides. They also conduct the fortnightly inspections of the areas of limitation in armaments and forces provided for under the disengagement agreement of 1974. This group of UNTSO observers is formed into Observer Group Golan

UNITED NATIONS

(OGG). The Observer Detachment Damascus (ODD), a separate UNTSO unit, serves UNTSO in Syria and performs support functions for OGG.

In the Israel-Lebanon sector, UNTSO observers who have been detailed to assist the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL) form the Observer Group Lebanon (OGL). This Group, which is under operational control of the UNIFIL commander, maintains five observation posts along the Lebanese side of the Armistice Demarcation Line and operates four mobile teams in parts of the UNIFIL area of operation that are under Israeli control and where UNIFIL infantry units are not deployed.

UNTSO continues to maintain its presence in the Egypt-Israel sector, where its observers are organized as Observer Group Egypt (OGE). The Group operates four outposts in the Sinai and an outpost at Ismailia, and conducts patrols in most parts of the peninsula. OGE headquarters in Cairo maintains liaison for UNTSO with the Egyptian authorities.

In addition, UNTSO maintains offices in Amman, Beirut and Gaza.

OTHER ACTIVITIES

Over the years, UNTSO has also made available its personnel to assist in the setting up of other United Nations peace-keeping operations not connected with the Arab-Israeli conflict. The rapid deployment of experienced United Nations observers has been most valuable in setting up the United Nations Operation in the Congo (ONUC) in 1960, the United Nations Yemen Observation Mission (UNYOM) in 1963, the United Nations Good Offices Mission in Afghanistan and Pakistan (UNGOMAP), the United Nations Iran-Iraq Military Observer Group (UNIIMOG) in 1988 and the United Nations Iraq-Kuwait Observation Mission (UNIKOM) in 1991.

COMPOSITION OF UNTSO

The strength of UNTSO is currently being reduced from 298 to 224 military observers. They are provided by 19 contributing countries: Argentina, Australia, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Chile, China, Denmark, Finland, France, Ireland, Italy, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Russian Federation, Sweden, Switzerland, United States.

FINANCIAL ASPECTS

Since its establishment in 1948, UNTSO has been financed from the regular budget of the United Nations. Its costs are therefore assessed as part of each biennial programme budget. The annual cost of the operation is approximately $31 million.

UNITED NATIONS DISENGAGEMENT OBSERVER FORCE

LOCATION: Syrian Golan Heights

HEADQUARTERS: Damascus

DURATION: June 1974 - to date

CURRENT STRENGTH: Approx. 1,130 troops assisted by 96 military observers of UNTSO's Observer Group Golan

FATALITIES: 31

FORCE COMMANDER: Major-General Roman Mizstal (Poland)

BACKGROUND

On 6 October 1973, war erupted again in the Middle East between Egyptian and Israeli forces in the Suez Canal area and the Sinai and between Israeli and Syrian forces on the Golan Heights. On 24 October, as fighting between Egypt and Israel reached a critical stage, the Security Council decided to set up a second United Nations Emergency Force (UNEF II). The Force was immediately moved into place between the Israeli and Egyptian armies in the Suez Canal area, and its arrival effectively stabilized the situation.

In the Israel-Syria sector tension remained high, and from March 1974 the situation became increasingly unstable. Against this background, the United States undertook a diplomatic initiative, which resulted in the conclusion of an Agreement on Disengagement between Israeli and Syrian forces. The Agreement provided for an area of separation and for two equal zones of limited forces and armaments on both sides of the area, and called for the establishment of a United Nations observer force to supervise its implementation. The Agreement was signed on 31 May 1974.

ESTABLISHMENT OF UNDOF

Later on the same day, the Security Council adopted resolution 350 (1974) by which it set up the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force (UNDOF). As provided in the Agreement on Disengagement, UNDOF's mandate was to maintain the cease-fire between Israel and Syria, to supervise the disengagement of Israeli and Syrian forces, and to supervise the areas of separation and limitation. Since then, the Security Council has periodically extended UNDOF's mandate for periods of six months at a time.

UNDOF'S ACTIVITIES

Advance parties of the Force arrived in the area on 3 June 1974 and within two weeks its total strength was brought to near its then authorized level of about 1,250. Following the completion of the disengagement operation and the delineation of the lines bounding the area of separation, UNDOF set up a series of check-points and observation posts within that area. In addition, two base camps were established, one on the east side of the area of separation and the other on the west side.

In the area of separation UNDOF operates static positions and observation posts, which are manned 24 hours a day, and conducts patrols by vehicle or on foot along predetermined routes by day and night. Temporary outposts and additional patrols are set up from time to time to perform specific tasks.

Under a programme undertaken by the Syrian authorities, civilians have continued to return to the area of separation, the population of which has doubled since the establishment of UNDOF. The Syrian Arab Republic has stationed police in the area of separation in exercise of its administrative responsibility. UNDOF has adjusted its operations accordingly to take account of these developments and to continue to carry out effectively its supervisory tasks under the Agreement on Disengagement.

UNDOF headquarters maintains close liaison with the Israeli and the Syrian authorities through their senior military representatives. At the local level, the commanders of the UNDOF units maintain liaison with one side or the other through liaison officers designated by the parties.

UNDOF conducts fortnightly inspections of armament and force levels in the area of limitation. These inspections are carried out with the assistance of liaison officers from the parties, who accompany the inspection teams. The findings of the inspection teams are communicated to the two parties. The inspections have generally proceeded smoothly with the cooperation of the parties concerned, although on both sides restrictions are regularly placed on the movement of the teams in some localities.

UNDOF has thus continued to perform its tasks effectively, with the cooperation of the parties, and the area has remained generally quiet.

HUMANITARIAN FUNCTIONS

In addition to its normal peace-keeping functions, UNDOF has carried out activities of a humanitarian nature. At the request of the parties, UNDOF has from time to time exercised its good offices in arranging for the transfer of released prisoners and the bodies of war dead between Israel and Syria. It has assisted the International Committee of the Red Cross by providing it with facilities for the hand-over of prisoners and bodies, for the exchange of parcels and mail and for the passage of persons and personal effects across the area of separation.

COMPOSITION

UNDOF was originally composed of Austrian and Peruvian infantry units and Canadian and Polish logistic elements transferred from the Second United Nations Emergency Force (UNEF II). The Peruvian contingent was withdrawn in July 1975 and replaced by an Iranian contingent. This contingent was in turn withdrawn in March 1979 and replaced by a Finnish contingent. Currently, UNDOF is composed of contingents from Austria, Canada, Finland and Poland, as well as a number of military observers, detailed from UNTSO. In addition, UNTSO observers assigned to the Israel-Syria Mixed Armistice Commission assist UNDOF as the occasion requires.

FINANCIAL ASPECTS

From its inception, UNDOF has been financed from the special account established for UNEF II. Following the termination of UNEF II in July 1979, the account remained open for UNDOF. The annual cost to the United Nations of the operation is approximately $43 million. As at 31 August 1992, total contributions outstanding to the Special Account for the period from the inception of the operation to 30 November 1992 amounted to approximately $21 million.

UNITED NATIONS INTERIM FORCE IN LEBANON

LOCATION: Southern Lebanon

HEADQUARTERS: Naqoura

DURATION: March 1978 - to date

STRENGTH: The strength is currently being reduced from 5,800 troops to about 5,300. UNIFIL is assisted by 65 military observers of UNTSO's Observer Group Lebanon.

FATALITIES: 188

FORCE COMMANDER: Lieutenant-General Lars-Eric Wahlgren (Sweden)

BACKGROUND

In the early 1970s, tension along the Israeli-Lebanon border increased, especially after the relocation of Palestinian armed elements from Jordan to Lebanon. Palestinian commando operations against Israel and Israeli reprisals against Palestinian bases in Lebanon intensified. On 11 March 1978, a commando attack in Israel resulted in many dead and wounded among the Israeli population; the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) claimed responsibility for that raid. In retaliation, Israeli forces invaded Lebanon on the night of 14/15 March, and in a few days occupied the entire southern part of the country except for the city of Tyre and its surrounding area.

ESTABLISHMENT OF UNIFIL

On 15 March, the Lebanese Government submitted a strong protest to the Security Council against the Israeli invasion, stating that it had no connection with the Palestinian commando operation. On 19 March, the Security Council adopted resolutions 425 (1978) and 426 (1978), in which it called upon Israel immediately to cease its military action and withdraw its forces from all Lebanese territory. It also decided to establish immediately a United Nations interim force for southern Lebanon for an initial period of six months, subject to extension. The United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL) was set up with the mandate to confirm the withdrawal of Israeli forces from southern Lebanon, to restore international peace and security and to assist the Government of Lebanon in ensuring the return of its effective authority in the area. The first UNIFIL troops arrived in the area on 23 March 1978.

UNIFIL'S ACTIVITIES

Until now, however, it has not yet been possible for UNIFIL to carry out in full its original mandate. From its inception, the Force had to operate under extremely difficult conditions. The PLO and the Government of Israel never fully accepted the UNIFIL mandate with all its implications. Given these attitudes, the Force was prevented from deploying fully in the area evacuated by the Israeli forces between April and June 1978. In fact, the enclave along the border was turned over to the "de facto forces" (Christian and associated militias supported and supplied by Israel). Israel, thus, retained a degree of military power in the area and continued its fight against the PLO and its Lebanese allies. UNIFIL's efforts to implement its mandate in these conditions inevitably met with only partial success and caused the Force to suffer significant casualties.

In June 1982, Israel invaded Lebanon again. This invasion changed UNIFIL's situation drastically. For three years, UNIFIL in its entirety remained behind the Israel lines, with its role limited to providing protection and humanitarian assistance to the local population to the extent possible.

In 1985, Israel carried out a partial withdrawal but it retained control of an area in southern Lebanon, manned by the Israel Defence Forces (IDF) and by Lebanese de facto forces (DFF), the so-called "South Lebanon Army". IDF/DFF remain targets for attacks by armed groups opposed to the occupation. For their part, IDF/DFF react vigorously to these attacks, often with heavy weapons and with air support from Israel.

UNIFIL has thus been prevented from carrying out its mandate. In the circumstances, it endeavours, to the best of its ability, to prevent its area of operations from being used for hostile activities and to protect civilians caught in the conflict.

UNIFIL's operations are based on a network of positions which are manned 24 hours a day. The Force maintains 45 checkpoints, whose function is to control movement on the principal roads in UNIFIL's area; 95 observation posts, whose function is to observe movement on and off the roads; and 29 checkpoints/observation posts which combine the functions of control and observation. Each is assigned responsibility for ensuring that hostile activities are not undertaken from the area surrounding it. This involves not only keeping watch from the position but also patrolling by foot or vehicle in its vicinity. In addition, unarmed military observers of the United Nations Truce Supervision Organization (UNTSO) man five observation posts and operate four mobile teams in the area under Israeli control. The UNTSO observers are under the operational control of UNIFIL's Commander.

UNIFIL's network of positions and the patrols mounted from them also play a central role in the Force's performance of its humanitarian task. They provide the civilian population with protection and with a source of help if they are subjected to harassment. Within available resources, UNIFIL also provides civilians with medical supplies, water, food, fuel, electricity, engineering work and escort for farmers. UNIFIL medical centres and mobile teams provided care to an average of 3,000 civilian patients per month and a field dental programme was also provided.

In accordance with its mandate of assisting the Government of Lebanon in ensuring the return of its effective authority in the UNIFIL area, UNIFIL and the Lebanese military authorities worked out arrangements for the transfer to the Lebanese army of responsibility for the western part of the Force's Ghanaian battalion sector. The handover, which involved the vacating of eight UNIFIL positions, was completed in early April 1992.

In July 1992, in his report to the Security Council, the Secretary-General stated that despite the fact that UNIFIL had merely succeeded in limiting the consequences of actions by the parties, its contribution to stability in the region remained important. He recommended to extend UNIFIL's mandate for a further period of six months, that is until 31 January 1993. The Security Council approved this recommendation.

COMPOSITION OF UNIFIL

Currently, the strength of UNIFIL is being reduced from 5,800 troops to about 5,300, to be reached by the end of 1992. Military personnel are provided by Fiji, Finland, France, Ghana, Ireland, Italy, Nepal, Norway and Sweden. In addition, 65 military observers from UNTSO's Observer Group Lebanon assist the Force in the performance of its tasks.

FINANCIAL ASPECTS

The annual cost to the United Nations of UNIFIL is approximately $153 million. The costs of the operation are met by the assessed contributions of the United Nations Member States. As at 31 August 1992, total contributions outstanding to the UNIFIL Special Account amounted to approximately $228 million.

UNITED NATIONS MILITARY OBSERVER GROUP IN INDIA AND PAKISTAN

LOCATION: The cease-fire line between India and Pakistan in the State of Jammu and Kashmir

HEADQUARTERS: Rawalpindi (November-April), Srinagar (May-October)

DURATION: January 1949 - to date

STRENGTH: 40 military observers

FATALITIES: 6

CHIEF MILITARY OBSERVER: Brigadier-General Ricardo Jorge Galarza-Chans (Uruguay)

BACKGROUND

For nearly four decades, the United Nations has been concerned with the conflict between India and Pakistan over the status of the State of Jammu and Kashmir. In August 1947, India and Pakistan became independent. Under the scheme of partition provided by the Indian Independence Act of 1947, Kashmir was free to accede to India or Pakistan. Its accession to India became a matter of dispute between the two countries and fighting broke out later that year.

The question first came before the Security Council in January 1948, when India complained that tribesmen and others, with Pakistan's support and participation, were invading Kashmir and extensive fighting was taking place. Pakistan denied the charges and declared that Kashmir's accession to India was illegal.

ESTABLISHMENT OF UNMOGIP

On 20 January, the Security Council adopted resolution 39 (1948) establishing a three-member United Nations Commission for India and Pakistan (UNCIP) to investigate and mediate the dispute. On 21 April 1948, by its resolution 47 (1948), the Council decided to enlarge the membership of UNCIP and recommended various measures, including the use of observers, to stop the fighting. The cease-fire between India and Pakistan came into effect on 1 January 1949, and a first group of UN military observers arrived in the area on 24 January. On 18 July 1949, India and Pakistan signed the Karachi Agreement establishing a cease-fire line to be supervised by the observers. These observers formed the nucleus of the United Nations Military Observer Group in India and Pakistan (UNMOGIP).

UNITED NATIONS

UNMOGIP'S ACTIVITIES

Following the termination of UNCIP, the Security Council, by its resolution 91 (1951) of 30 March 1951, decided that UNMOGIP should continue to supervise the cease-fire in Kashmir. Since that time, UNMOGIP has functioned as an autonomous operation, directed by the Chief Military Observer. UNMOGIP's functions were to observe and report, investigate complaints of cease-fire violations and submit its findings to each party and to the Secretary-General.

In early August 1965, hostilities again broke out on a large scale along the cease-fire line in Kashmir, and eventually spread to the international border between India and West Pakistan. The Security Council called for a cease-fire and a withdrawal of all armed personnel to the positions held before the hostilities began.

In Kashmir, the supervision called for by the Council was exercised by UNMOGIP. In addition, since the hostilities extended beyond the Kashmir cease-fire line, the Secretary-General established an administrative adjunct of UNMOGIP, the United Nations India-Pakistan Observation Mission (UNIPOM), as a temporary measure for the sole purpose of supervising the cease-fire along the India-Pakistan border outside the State of Jammu and Kashmir. Following the withdrawal of troops in February 1966, UNMOGIP reverted to its original task, while UNIPOM was terminated.

At the end of 1971, full-scale hostilities again broke out between India and Pakistan. By the time fighting had ended and a cease-fire had gone into effect, a number of positions on both sides of the 1949 cease-fire line had changed hands. In July 1972, India and Pakistan signed an agreement defining a Line of Control in Kashmir which, with minor deviations, followed the same course as the cease-fire line established by the Karachi Agreement of 1949. India took the position that the mandate of UNMOGIP had lapsed, since it had related specifically to the cease-fire line under the Karachi Agreement and did not extend to the actual line of control that had come into existence in December 1971. Pakistan, however, did not accept this position.

PRESENT SITUATION

Given the disagreement between the two parties about UNMOGIP's mandate and functions, the Secretary-General's position has been that UNMOGIP can be terminated only by a decision of the Security Council. In the absence of such a decision, UNMOGIP has been maintained with the same administrative arrangements. Its task is to observe, to the extent possible, developments pertaining to the strict observance of the cease-fire of 17 December 1971 and to report thereon to the Secretary-General. The military authorities of Pakistan have continued to lodge with UNMOGIP complaints about cease-fire violations. The military authorities of India have lodged no complaints since January 1972 and have restricted the activities of the United Nations' observers on the Indian side of the Line of Control. They have, however, continued to provide accommodation, transport and other facilities to UNMOGIP.

The Observer Group's Headquarters alternates between Srinagar in summer (mid-May to mid-November) and Rawalpindi in winter. An operational staff office is maintained in one of those two cities when it is not hosting the headquarters. The supervision of the cease-fire in the field is carried out by a number of field observation teams stationed on both sides of the line of control and also along the border between Pakistan and Kashmir.

COMPOSITION OF UNMOGIP

The strength of UNMOGIP is about 40 military observers from eight countries: Belgium, Chile, Denmark, Finland, Italy, Norway, Sweden and Uruguay.

FINANCIAL ASPECTS

UNMOGIP is financed from the regular budget of the United Nations. The annual cost of the operation is approximately $5 million.

PS/DPI/9/Rev. 2 — September 1992

UNITED NATIONS PEACE-KEEPING FORCE IN CYPRUS

LOCATION: Cyprus

HEADQUARTERS: Nicosia

DURATION: March 1964 - to date

CURRENT STRENGTH: Approximately 2,100 troops and 38 civilian police

FATALITIES: 158

SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE OF THE SECRETARY-GENERAL: Mr. Oscar Camilión (Argentina)

FORCE COMMANDER: Major-General Michael F. Minehane (Ireland)

BACKGROUND

Cyprus became independent on 16 August 1960 with a Constitution that was intended to balance the interests of the island's Greek Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot communities. A treaty of August 1960, entered into by Cyprus, Greece, Turkey and the United Kingdom guaranteed the basic provisions of the Constitution and the territorial integrity and sovereignty of Cyprus.

The application of the provisions of the Constitution, however, encountered difficulties from the very beginning and led to a succession of constitutional crises. The accumulated tension between the two communities resulted in the outbreak of violence on the island on 21 December 1963.

On 27 December, the United Nations Security Council met to consider a complaint by Cyprus charging intervention in its internal affairs and aggression by Turkey. Turkey maintained that Greek Cypriot leaders had tried for more than two years to nullify the rights of the Turkish Cypriot community and denied all charges of aggression.

ESTABLISHMENT OF UNFICYP

On 15 February 1964, after all attempts to restore peace on the island had failed, the representatives of the United Kingdom and of Cyprus requested urgent action by the Security Council. On 4 March 1964, the Council unanimously adopted resolution 186 (1964), by which it recommended the establishment of the United Nations Peace-keeping Force in Cyprus (UNFICYP) with a mandate to prevent the recurrence of fighting, help maintain law and order, and promote a return to normal conditions. Since then, the Council has periodically extended UNFICYP's mandate, usually for periods of six months at a time.

MAINTENANCE OF THE CEASE-FIRE AND THE STATUS QUO

In connection with the hostilities in July and August 1974, the Security Council adopted a number of resolutions which have affected the functioning of UNFICYP and have required the Force to perform certain additional functions relating, in particular, to the maintenance of the cease-fire.

Following a de facto cease-fire, which came into effect on 16 August 1974, UNFICYP inspected the deployment of the Cyprus National Guard and the Turkish and Turkish Cypriot forces, and cease-fire lines and a buffer zone were established between the areas controlled by the opposing parties. The cease-fire lines extend approximately 180 kilometres across the island. The buffer zone between the lines varies in width from less than 20 metres to some 7 kilometres, and it covers about 3 per cent of the island, including some of the most valuable agricultural land.

Strict adherence to the military status quo in the buffer zone, as recorded by UNFICYP at the time, has become a vital element in preventing a recurrence of fighting. UNFICYP maintains constant surveillance through a system of 150 observation posts, 51 of which are permanently manned, and through air, vehicle and foot patrols. The Force maintains a patrol track, which runs the length of the buffer zone and is used for surveillance, monitoring of agricultural activities, the resupply of observation posts and rapid reaction to any incidents.

The task of UNFICYP is significantly complicated by the absence of a formal cease-fire agreement. As a result, UNFICYP is confronted with hundreds of incidents each year. The most serious incidents tend to occur in areas where the cease-fire lines are in close proximity to each other, particularly in Nicosia and its suburbs. The Force investigates and acts upon all violations of the cease-fire and the status quo. Its reaction in each particular case depends on the nature of the incident and may include the deployment of troops, verbal and written protests and follow-up action to ensure that the violation has been rectified or will not recur.

HUMANITARIAN ACTIVITIES

Another major function entrusted to UNFICYP is to encourage the fullest possible resumption of normal civilian activity in the buffer zone. To this end, it facilitates the resumption of farming in the buffer zone; assists both communities on matters related to the supply of electricity and water across the lines; facilitates normal contacts between Greek and Turkish Cypriots; provides emergency medical services; and delivers mail and Red Cross messages across the lines. UNFICYP discharges certain humanitarian functions for the Greek Cypriots living in the northern part of the island and periodically visits Turkish Cypriots living in the southern part. In addition, UNFICYP delivers supplies to the small Maronite community in the northern part and generally assists them in humanitarian matters. UNFICYP also cooperates with the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees in providing relief assistance.

COMPOSITION OF UNFICYP

The operational elements of UNFICYP comprise military and civilian police personnel from Australia, Austria, Canada, Denmark, Finland, Ireland, Sweden and the United Kingdom.

FINANCIAL ASPECTS

UNFICYP is the only United Nations peace-keeping operation that is not financed from assessed contributions by States members of the Organization. In accordance with Security Council resolution 186 (1964), the costs of the Force are met by the Governments providing the military contingents and by voluntary contributions received for this purpose by the United Nations. In addition, the Government of Cyprus provides at no cost areas for the headquarters, camps and other premises of UNFICYP. The annual cost of UNFICYP to the United Nations is approximately $31 million.

Under the existing arrangements, the troop-contributing Governments make available to the United Nations troops whose regular pay and allowances and normal matérial expenses, as well as certain extra and extraordinary costs they have agreed to pay themselves. The United Nations is responsible for the operational costs for administrative and logistic support (e.g., rations, fuel, hire of vehicles, maintenance of premises, salaries and travel of non-military personnel) and for extra and extraordinary costs incurred by the troop-contributing Governments for which they seek reimbursement on the basis of separate agreements concluded by the United Nations with each of those Governments. These costs can be paid only from the voluntary contributions received for this purpose. Voluntary contributions, however, consistently fall short of the required funds, leaving the Special Account for UNFICYP with a total deficit of approximately $193 million for the period from the inception of the Force to mid-June 1992. As a result, reimbursement claims from the troop-contributing countries have been paid only up to December 1981.

The Secretary-General has repeatedly voiced his profound concern about the worsening financial situation confronting UNFICYP. He suggested that the Force should be put on a sound and secure financial basis and that the best way to finance UNFICYP would be for the United Nations share of the costs to be met from assessed contributions.

RESTRUCTURING OF UNFICYP

In his April 1992 report to the Security Council, the Secretary-General described the increasing uneasiness of the troop-contributing Governments about the lack of progress towards a lasting solution to the Cyprus problem and about the deteriorating financial situation of the Force. That dissatisfaction increased further when, in December 1991, the Council decided that it would be unable to approve assessed funding for UNFICYP. The Secretary-General pointed out that two of the four main contributors indicated the unlikelihood of their ability to maintain their presence in UNFICYP for more than another mandate period, while a third contributor stated that it was re-examining its role in the Force.

In his further report, in May 1992, on the activities of UNFICYP, the Secretary-General drew attention to the need for consultations to be held with the troop-contributing countries to clarify their precise intentions on participation in the Force, including the timing of any reductions or withdrawals of their contingents, and to explore the possible future options for UNFICYP. He proposed extension of UNFICYP's mandate subject to possible changes in its size and the nature of its mandate for which he might seek the Council's approval in the light of those consultations. On 12 June 1992, the Security Council extended the Force's mandate for a further six months, to 15 December 1992. The Council requested the Secretary-General, after consulting the troop-contributing Governments, to submit specific proposals on the restructuring of the Force.

UNITED NATIONS IRAQ-KUWAIT OBSERVATION MISSION

LOCATION: The demilitarized zone along the boundary between Iraq and Kuwait

HEADQUARTERS: Umm Qasr

DURATION: April 1991 - to date

AUTHORIZED STRENGTH: 300 military observers and 200 other military personnel

FATALITIES: 1

CHIEF MILITARY OBSERVER: Major-General Timothy K. Dibuama (Ghana)

BACKGROUND

On 2 August 1990, Iraq invaded and occupied Kuwait. The same day, the United Nations Security Council condemned the invasion and demanded Iraq's immediate and unconditional withdrawal. A few days later, the Council instituted economic sanctions against Iraq. The Council subsequently adopted a number of resolutions on various aspects of the situation and, on 29 November 1990, it decided to give Iraq until 15 January 1991 to implement those resolutions; if not, Member States cooperating with the Government of Kuwait were authorized to use "all necessary means" to uphold and implement the Council's resolutions and to restore international peace and security in the area. The deadline passed and the next day the armed forces of those States began air attacks against Iraq, followed on 24 February by a ground offensive. Hostilities were suspended on 27 February, by which time the Iraqi forces had vacated Kuwait. On 3 April 1991, while still maintaining the economic sanctions against Iraq, the Security Council adopted resolution 687 (1991) which set an elaborate series of conditions for a cease-fire and established the machinery for the supervision of those conditions. Following Iraq's acceptance of that resolution's provisions, the cease-fire became a formal one.

ESTABLISHMENT OF UNIKOM

By resolution 687 (1991) the Council established, among other things, a demilitarized zone (DMZ) along the boundary between Iraq and Kuwait to be monitored by a United Nations observer unit and requested the Secretary-General to submit to the Council for approval a plan for the unit's immediate deployment. The Secretary-General reported back on 5 April 1991, and on 9 April the Security Council approved his plan for the setting up of the United Nations Iraq-Kuwait Observation Missions (UNIKOM) (resolution 689 (1991). It decided further that the modalities for the Mission should be reviewed every six months.The mandate of the Mission is to monitor the Khawr 'Abd Allah waterway between Iraq and Kuwait and the DMZ, based on the border established by the two countries under a 1963 agreement; to deter violations of the boundary through its presence in and surveillance of the demilitarized zone; and to observe any hostile action mounted from the territory of one State against the other. The Khawr 'Abd Allah waterway is about 40 kilometres (25 miles) long. The DMZ, which is about 200 kilometres (125 miles) long, extends 10 kilometres (6 miles) into Iraq and 5 kilometres (3 miles) into Kuwait.

The military observers of UNIKOM are unarmed. UNIKOM does not have the authority or the capacity to take physical action to prevent the entry of military personnel or equipment into the DMZ. Responsibility for the maintenance of law and order rests with the Governments of Iraq and Kuwait in their respective parts of the zone. In the DMZ, the police are only allowed sidearms.

UNIKOM'S ACTIVITIES

The UNIKOM advance party arrived in the area on 13 April 1991. By 6 May, the Mission was fully deployed. UNIKOM then monitored the withdrawal of the armed forces that were still deployed in its assigned zone. That withdrawal having been completed, the DMZ established by the Security Council came into effect at 2000 hours GMT on 9 May, and UNIKOM assumed in full its observation responsibilities.

UNIKOM enjoys full freedom of movement throughout the DMZ and observes the length and breadth of the zone. It verifies that no military personnel and equipment are within the zone and that no military fortifications and installations are maintained in it. For operational purposes, UNIKOM has divided the DMZ into three sectors. Each sector has a headquarters and six observation posts/patrol bases, from which the observers patrol their assigned sectors and visit temporary observation points established in areas of particular activity or where roads and tracks enter the DMZ. In fact, all movements including supply runs are used for observation. UNIKOM patrols the Khawr 'Abd Allah waterway by helicopter and fixed-wing aircraft. There are also air patrols in the DMZ, especially in the southern sector, where mines and unexploded ordnance limit UNIKOM's ability to carry out ground patrols.

Mines and unexploded ordnance have been a serious hazard from the beginning of the Mission. UNIKOM engineers have cleared some 1,300 kilometres of patrol track as well as the sites for observation posts, camps and helicopter pads and disposed of some 12,000 mines and pieces of unexploded ordnance.

Iraqi and Kuwaiti authorities, including police, function in their respective part of the DMZ. However, UNIKOM established the principle that they should maintain a reasonable distance (about 1,000 metres) from the boundary line shown on UNIKOM's map. If their functions should require them to approach closer than 1,000 metres, the authorities are expected to consult UNIKOM in advance. Such consultation enables UNIKOM to take measures to avoid incidents.

UNIKOM has also maintained contact and provided support to other United Nations missions working in Iraq and Kuwait, in particular to the Iraq-Kuwait Boundary Demarcation Commission and to the United Nations office dealing with the return of property from Iraq to Kuwait.

UNIKOM headquarters is located at Umm Qasr. The Mission maintains liaison offices in Baghdad and Kuwait City and a logistic base at Doha (Kuwait).

VIOLATIONS AND COMPLAINTS

Since the DMZ came into effect on 9 May 1991, UNIKOM has observed three types of violations: minor incursions on the ground by small groups of soldiers; overflights by military aircraft; and the carrying by policemen of weapons other than sidearms. UNIKOM has also investigated a number of complaints by Iraq and Kuwait.

COMPOSITION

UNIKOM has an authorized strength of 300 unarmed military observers from the following countries: Argentina, Austria, Bangladesh, Canada, China, Denmark, Fiji, Finland, France, Ghana, Greece, Hungary, India, Indonesia, Ireland, Italy, Kenya, Malaysia, Nigeria, Norway, Pakistan, Poland, Romania, Russian Federation, Senegal, Singapore, Sweden, Thailand, Turkey, United Kingdom, United States, Uruguay and Venezuela. Administrative and logistic support is provided by Canada (engineers), Chile (helicopters), Denmark (logistics) and Norway (medical). Two fixed-wing aircraft made available by the Government of Switzerland are operated by civilians.

Initially, to provide essential security during the setting-up phase, UNIKOM included five infantry companies, drawn from the United Nations Peace-keeping Force in Cyprus (UNFICYP) and the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL). These troops were withdrawn by the end of June 1991.

FINANCIAL ASPECTS

The annual cost to the United Nations of the operation is approximately $67 million. The costs of the Mission are met by the assessed contributions of the United Nations Member States. As at 31 August 1992, total contributions outstanding to the Special Account for the period from the inception of the operation to 8 October 1992 amounted to approximately $35 million.

UNITED NATIONS ANGOLA VERIFICATION MISSION II

LOCATION: Angola

HEADQUARTERS: Luanda

DURATION: June 1991 - To date

AUTHORIZED STRENGTH: 350 military observers, 126 police monitors and up to 400 electoral observers

SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE OF THE SECRETARY-GENERAL AND CHIEF OF MISSION: Miss Margaret Joan Anstee (United Kingdom)

CHIEF MILITARY OBSERVER: Major-General Edward U. Unimna (Nigeria)

BACKGROUND

The United Nations Angola Verification Mission (UNAVEM I) was originally established by the Security Council on 20 December 1988 at the request of the Governments of Angola and Cuba. Its task was to verify the phased and total withdrawal of Cuban troops from Angola in accordance with the timetable agreed between the two Governments. The withdrawal was completed by 25 May 1991 – more than one month before the scheduled date. On 6 June, the Secretary-General reported to the Council that UNAVEM I had carried out, fully and effectively, the mandate entrusted to it.

Meanwhile, on 17 May 1991, the Government of Angola requested the Secretary-General to ensure the participation of the United Nations in verifying the implementation of the Peace Accords for Angola, initialled by the Angolan Government and the União Nacional para a Independência Total de Angola (UNITA) on 1 May 1991, and consequently to prolong UNAVEM's presence in Angola. In accordance with the Accords, the United Nations was to verify the arrangements agreed by the Angolan parties for the monitoring of the cease-fire and for the monitoring of the Angolan police during the cease-fire period. On 30 May, following the Secretary-General's recommendation, the Security Council adopted its resolution 696 (1991) entrusting a new mandate to UNAVEM (thereafter UNAVEM II) and establishing the Mission for a period of 17 months, until the general elections were held in Angola in the fall of 1992.

UNITED NATIONS

VERIFICATION OF CEASE-FIRE ARRANGEMENTS

The United Nations verification operation began as soon as the Angolan Peace Accords were formally signed on 31 May 1991. Advance parties of observers were deployed to the field on 2 June 1991.

Currently, UNAVEM II teams of unarmed military observers are deployed at some 46 locations ("assembly areas") where the troops of the two sides are assembled during the cease-fire, as well as at several "critical points" (certain seaports, airports and border posts). In essence, their task is to verify that joint monitoring groups, composed in equal numbers of representatives of the Angolan Government and of UNITA and responsible for monitoring on the spot the observance of the cease-fire, are assuming their responsibilities. Working closely with these monitoring groups, UNAVEM II verification teams provide support in the investigation and resolution of alleged violations of the cease-fire. If necessary, they respond to requests for assistance and use their good offices to resolve problems that might arise within these groups. In addition, UNAVEM II has taken the initiative in monitoring some aspects of the Accords, such as the regular counting of troops and weapons in the assembly areas; and monitoring of unassembled troops, demobilized troops, and troops selected to join the new Angolan Armed Forces.

The neutrality of the Angolan police is to be verified by monitoring teams also composed of members designated by the Government of Angola and by UNITA. Their work is verified by UNAVEM II police observers. The monitoring teams and UNAVEM observers are to visit police facilities, examine activities of the police and, if necessary, investigate alleged violations of political rights. The police monitoring teams were established in all 18 Angolan provinces only in June 1992 although UNAVEM II police observers were present in the designated areas by October 1991.

On many occasions the United Nations conveyed to the two sides suggestions to overcome difficulties related to the assembly and the demobilization of troops, proper custody of weapons, the monitoring of the police, as well as to other matters relating to the peace process. At the request of the two parties, the United Nations launched an emergency food programme to relieve the shortage of food in the assembly areas.

ENLARGEMENT OF UNAVEM II'S MANDATE

The Peace Accords for Angola provided for "free and fair elections for a new Government" under "the supervision of international election observers". On 5 December 1991, the Secretary-General received two letters signed by the Minister for External Relations of Angola. One of the letters contained a request for United Nations technical assistance to help the Angolan Government to prepare for and conduct the forthcoming elections. The other letter contained a formal request to the Secretary-General to send United Nations observers to follow the Angolan electoral procedure until its completion in the fall of 1992. It was later announced that elections would be held on 29 and 30 September 1992. An agreement on technical assistance was signed with the Angolan Government in January 1992. As regards United Nations observation of the first-ever elections in Angola, the Secretary-General informed the Security Council on 20 December 1991 that he intended to recommend that the Council authorize such a mission. On 6 February 1992, the Secretary-General informed the Council of his decision to appoint Miss Margaret Joan Anstee as his Special Representative to coordinate the current and projected activities of the United Nations in connection with the Angola Peace Accords, and as the Chief of UNAVEM II. On 3 March, following the Special Representative's visit to Angola, the Secretary-General submitted to the Council his report with recommendations concerning the United Nations role in observing the forthcoming elections. On 24 March, the Security Council, by its resolution 747 (1992), decided to enlarge UNAVEM II's mandate to include election observation in Angola.

OBSERVATION OF ELECTIONS

In March 1992, the office of the Special Representative was established in Luanda, the capital of Angola, to coordinate all United Nations activities related to the Angolan peace process. In addition to its deployed military and police observers and civilian staff, UNAVEM II has been enlarged to include an Electoral Division, headed by a Chief Electoral Officer with some international staff and the requisite local staff at headquarters in Luanda. Offices of the Electoral Division have been established in the six Angolan regions and in the capitals of all 18 provinces of the country. They are collocated with the teams of the military component of UNAVEM II. Approximately 100 international staff and the requisite number of local staff were mandated for the regional and provincial electoral offices.

The United Nations role is to observe and verify the elections, not to organize them. The electoral process is to be organized by the National Electoral Council with technical assistance provided by experts and consultants from the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP). The Special Representative also plays a major role in generating and coordinating international assistance for the Angolan electoral process. Three main phases of the electoral process are foreseen: the registration of voters; the electoral campaign; and the presidential and legislative elections at the end of September 1992.

UNAVEM electoral observers, during all three phases, will monitor and evaluate the operations and the impartiality of the electoral authorities at all levels. They have observed all activities related to the registration of voters, and will observe the organization of the poll, the electoral campaign, the poll itself and the counting and announcement of the results. In this context, UNAVEM teams monitor important political rallies and other political activities; and verify compliance by all parties with the electoral law and with the code of conduct. The mechanisms through which broadcasting time is allotted to the different parties are also observed and the content of information broadcasts and the fairness of tariffs will be analyzed. UNAVEM also evaluates complaints received about the use of public resources as well as making its own observations. It is expected that over 95 per cent of the municipalities and main population centres will be visited at least once by UNAVEM teams and, for the more populated areas, there will be several visits. During the polling itself, the Electoral Division will field about 200 observation teams of two people each. These teams will have full access to monitor all stages of the poll, and will develop a projection of results for internal purposes.

COMPOSITION OF UNAVEM II

Originally, UNAVEM II's authorized strength was 350 military observers and 90 police observers. There were also a civilian air unit and a medical unit, as well as some 90 international and 120 local civilian staff. In May 1992, the Secretary-General recommended, and the Security Council agreed, to increase the police strength of the Mission to 126 officers. Military and police observers are provided by Algeria, Argentina, Brazil, Canada, Colombia, Congo, Czechoslovakia, Egypt, Guinea-Bissau, Hungary, India, Ireland, Jordan, Malaysia, Morocco, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nigeria, Norway, Senegal, Singapore, Spain, Sweden, former Yugoslavia and Zimbabwe.

During the polling, the Electoral Division will field a total of 400 electoral observers, comprised of approximately 100 observers coming from the existing staff of UNAVEM II; about 100 additional observers to be selected from UNDP and other United Nations agency personnel in Angola, plus volunteers from selected non-governmental organizations; about 100 additional observers from United Nations Secretariat; and a further 100 contributed by Member States.

FINANCIAL ASPECTS

The total cost to the United Nations of UNAVEM II for the 17-month period from 1 June 1991 to 31 October 1992 is estimated at approximately $107 million. The costs of the operation are to be met by assessed contributions from the Member States. As at 31 August 1992, total contributions outstanding to the United Nations Angola Verification Mission (UNAVEM I and UNAVEM II) from the inception of the operation through 31 October 1992 amounted to approximately $25 million.

UNITED NATIONS OBSERVER MISSION IN EL SALVADOR

LOCATION: El Salvador

HEADQUARTERS: San Salvador

DURATION: July 1991 - to date

AUTHORIZED STRENGTH: Approximately 1,000 military and police personnel and 146 international civilian staff

CHIEF OF MISSION: Mr. Iqbal Riza (Pakistan)

BACKGROUND

The establishment of the United Nations Observer Mission in El Salvador (ONUSAL) came about as a result of a complex negotiating process, initiated by the Government of El Salvador and the Frente Farabundo Martí para la Liberación Nacional (FMLN) in September 1989 and conducted by the parties under the auspices of the United Nations Secretary-General. The objective of the negotiations was to achieve a series of political agreements aimed at resolving the prolonged armed conflict in El Salvador by political means as speedily as possible, promoting democratization in the country, guaranteeing unrestricted respect for human rights and reunifying Salvadorian society. It was envisaged that implementation of all agreements that might be signed between the two parties would be subject to verification by the United Nations.

The first substantive agreement was achieved on 26 July 1990, when the Government of El Salvador and FMLN signed, at San José, Costa Rica, the Agreement on Human Rights. This Agreement provided for the establishment of a United Nations verification mission to monitor nationwide respect for and the guarantee of human rights and fundamental freedoms in El Salvador. According to the Agreement, the Mission was to take up its duties as of the cessation of the armed conflict. Shortly after signing the Agreement, however, the two parties independently requested that the Mission be set up even before a cease-fire.

ESTABLISHMENT OF ONUSAL

On 20 May 1991, following the Secretary-General's recommendation, the Security Council, by its resolution 693 (1991), decided to establish ONUSAL, as an integrated peace-keeping operation, to monitor all agreements concluded between the Government of El Salvador and FMLN. The Mission's initial mandate was to verify the compliance by the parties with the San José Agreement on Human Rights. At that stage, the tasks of the Mission included actively monitoring the human rights situation in El Salvador; investigating specific cases of alleged human rights violations; promoting human rights in the country; making recommendations for the elimination of violations; and reporting on these matters to the Secretary-General and, through him, to the United Nations General Assembly and Security Council.

VERIFICATION OF THE SAN JOSÉ AGREEMENT

ONUSAL was launched on 26 July 1991, at which time it absorbed a small preparatory office established in San Salvador in January 1991. In assuming its initial tasks, ONUSAL adopted a two-phase approach. During the preparatory phase, from July through September, ONUSAL set up its regional offices and laid the operational and conceptual bases for its future work. On 1 October 1991, ONUSAL entered its second phase of operations, in which it began to investigate cases and situations involving allegations of human rights violations and to follow them up systematically with the competent State organs and with FMLN. The purpose of these activities has been to establish the veracity of such allegations and, where required, to follow the actions taken to identify and punish those responsible and to deter such violations in future. During this phase, ONUSAL has significantly expanded its contacts with the parties, establishing flexible, stable coordination mechanisms with them. In addition, the

UNITED NATIONS

Mission initiated both a human rights education programme and an information campaign on human rights.

ENLARGEMENT OF ONUSAL'S MANDATE

Meanwhile, steady progress was made in the negotiations on other political agreements aimed at ending the armed conflict in El Salvador. On 31 December 1991, following more than two weeks of protracted negotiations at United Nations Headquarters in New York, the parties signed the Act of New York which, combined with the agreements previously signed at San José (26 July 1990), Mexico City (27 April 1991) and New York (25 September 1991), completed the negotiations on all substantive issues of the peace process. The parties also agreed that the final peace agreements would be signed at Mexico City on 16 January 1992.

The agreements included two in particular, requiring a substantial enlargement of ONUSAL's mandate. These are the Agreement on the Cessation of the Armed Conflict, according to which ONUSAL is to verify all aspects of the cease-fire and the separation of forces, and the Agreement on the National Civil Police, which envisages that ONUSAL should monitor the maintenance of public order during the transitional period while the new National Civil Police is being set up.

On 14 January 1992, following the Secretary-General's recommendation, the Security Council, by its resolution 729 (1992), unanimously decided to enlarge ONUSAL's mandate and to increase its strength in order to fulfil verification requirements of the agreements. After signature of the "Peace Agreement" in Mexico City on 16 January 1992, the Secretary-General took immediate steps to enable the Mission to implement its expanded mandate.

ONUSAL STRUCTURE

In addition to the Human Rights Division, which was established in ONUSAL's first phase of operation to verify the implementation of the Agreement on Human Rights, two new Divisions have been established – a Military Division and a Police Division. All three Divisions are under the overall direction of the Chief of Mission, whose office, composed of a team of political affairs officers, is directly responsible for monitoring and promoting the implementation of all the political aspects of the Peace Agreement.

The Human Rights Division, which continues to be responsible for verifying the implementation of the Human Rights Agreement, comprises approximately 51 human rights observers, legal advisers and educators. The Regional Coordinators of the Division also deal with all the political aspects of the Mission's mandate, and report directly to the Chief of Mission in this respect.

The strength of the Military Division required for the process of ending the armed confrontation – a process which began on 1 February and is envisaged for completion by 31 October 1992 – currently includes 249 military observers provided by United Nations Member States. An additional 88 military observers were deployed for the 30-day period, from 1 February to 2 March, in connection with implementation of the separation of forces. Under that arrangement, the armed forces of El Salvador were to redeploy progressively to the positions they would maintain in normal peace time, while the FMLN forces were to concentrate progressively in agreed "designated locations" in the areas of conflict. The Military Division monitors the troops of the both parties in these locations, verifies the inventories of weapons and personnel, authorizes and accompanies the movements of both forces, and receives and investigates complaints of violations.

The strength of the Police Division, which is to monitor activities of the Salvadorian National Police, was authorized at 631 and is expected to reach 360. Currently, 309 observers are deployed in all the departments of the country. The Division, composed mostly of specialists experienced in the organization and operation of civilian police forces, monitors National Police activities during the delicate phase of transition from armed confrontation to national reconciliation. Its objective is to help provide the Salvadorian people with a sense of security while the new National Civil Police is being formed and trained.

COMPOSITION

ONUSAL military observers are provided by Brazil, Canada, Colombia, Ecuador, India, Ireland, Norway, Spain, Sweden and Venezuela. In addition, eight medical officers are provided by Argentina. Police observers come from Austria, Chile, France, Guyana, Italy, Mexico, Norway, Spain and Sweden.

FINANCIAL ASPECTS

The total cost of ONUSAL for the 16-month period from July 1991 to 31 October 1992 has been estimated at approximately $49 million. The costs of the operation are to be met by assessed contributions from United Nations Member States. As at 31 August 1992, total contributions outstanding to the ONUSAL Special Account for the period from the inception of the operation to 31 October 1992 amounted to approximately $16 million.

UNITED NATIONS MISSION FOR THE REFERENDUM IN WESTERN SAHARA

LOCATION: Western Sahara

HEADQUARTERS: Laayoune

DURATION: September 1991 - to date

AUTHORIZED STRENGTH: Approximately 1,695 military observers and troops, 300 police officers and about 800 to 1,000 civilian personnel

CURRENT STRENGTH: 346, including 223 military observers

FATALITIES: 1

SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE OF THE SECRETARY-GENERAL: Mr. Sahabzada Yaqub-Khan (Pakistan)

FORCE COMMANDER a.i.: Brigadier-General Luis Block Urban (Peru) (with effect from 1 October 1992, Brigadier-General André Van Baelen of Belgium will replace Brigadier-General Urban as Acting Force Commander)

BACKGROUND

In 1985, the Secretary-General of the United Nations, in cooperation with the Chairman of the Assembly of Heads of State and Government of the Organization of African Unity (OAU), initiated a joint mission of good offices in the search for a solution of the question of Western Sahara. On 11 August 1988, the Secretary-General of the United Nations and the Special Envoy of the Chairman of the Assembly of Heads of State and Government of the OAU presented, in separate meetings, to the parties to the conflict in Western Sahara, namely Morocco and the Frente Popular para la Liberación de Saguia el-Hamra y de Río de Oro (Frente POLISARIO), a document referred to as "the settlement proposals". The document contained proposals for a just and definitive solution of the question of Western Sahara in conformity with 1960 General Assembly resolution 1514 (XV). This would be accomplished by means of a cease-fire and the holding of a referendum without military or administrative constraints to enable the people of Western Sahara, in the exercise of their right to self-determination, to choose between independence and integration with Morocco.

On 27 June 1990, the Security Council, in its resolution 658 (1990), approved a report of the Secretary-General, which contained the full text of the settlement proposals as accepted by the two parties on 30 August 1988, as well as an outline of the Secretary-General's plan for implementing those proposals.

THE IMPLEMENTATION PLAN

The implementation plan provided for a transitional period during which the Special Representative of the Secretary-General, acting under the authority of the Secretary-General, would have sole and exclusive responsibility over all matters relating to the referendum, including its organization and conduct. The Special Representative would be assisted in his tasks by a deputy special representative and by an integrated group of United Nations civilian, military and civilian police personnel. This group would be known as the United Nations Mission for the Referendum in Western Sahara (MINURSO).

According to the plan, the transitional period would begin with the coming into effect of a cease-fire and end with the proclamation of the results of the referendum. Following the announcement of a cease-fire, MINURSO would verify the reduction of Moroccan troops in the Territory; monitor the confinement of Moroccan and Frente POLISARIO troops to designated locations; take steps with the parties to ensure the release of all Western Saharan political prisoners or detainees; oversee the exchange of prisoners of war (International Committee of the Red Cross); implement the repatriation programme (United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR)); identify and register qualified voters; organize and ensure a free referendum; and, proclaim the results.

UNITED NATIONS

The plan stipulated that MINURSO would consist of the Special Representative and his office, and civilian, security and military units. The civilian component would range in size from about 800 to 1000 personnel, depending on the requirements of the various phases of the transitional period. At full strength, the military component would consist of approximately 1,695 personnel, and the Security Unit of about 300 police officers.

ESTABLISHMENT OF MINURSO

On 29 April 1991, the Security Council in its resolution 690 (1991) decided to establish MINURSO, in accordance with a report of the Secretary-General which further detailed the implementation plan. In approving the plan, the Security Council also accepted the timetable proposed in the Secretary-General's report. It was envisaged that the transitional period would begin no later than 16 weeks after the General Assembly approved the MINURSO budget and would last for 20 weeks. MINURSO would remain in the Territory for up to 26 weeks from the coming into effect of the cease-fire. The Secretary-General indicated, however, that the periods of time allowed for the various processes were estimates that could require adjustment.

THE CEASE-FIRE

The budget for MINURSO was approved by the General Assembly on 17 May 1991. On 24 May, in accordance with the plan, the Secretary-General proposed that the cease-fire should enter into effect on 6 September 1991. Both parties accepted that date. During the following three months, however, it became clear that it would not be possible to complete before 6 September a number of tasks that were to be completed before the cease-fire. It also became clear that, notwithstanding the parties' earlier acceptance of the settlement plan, substantial areas of difference between them remained. One party therefore was not able to agree that the transition period should begin on 6 September 1991.

Meanwhile, hostilities had broken out in the Territory, interrupting an informal cease-fire that had been in effect for over two years. In these circumstances, the Secretary-General decided that the formal cease-fire should come into effect on 6 September as initially agreed, on the understanding that the transition period would begin as soon as the outstanding tasks had been completed. The Security Council supported his proposal that, during this delay, 100 military observers should be deployed in the Territory to verify the cease-fire and the cessation of hostilities in certain areas. The number of military observers was subsequently increased to 223 and certain logistics and administrative support staff were also sent to the field.

The primary function of MINURSO in its present limited deployment is restricted to verifying the cease-fire and cessation of hostilities. This is done by direct observation of military forces and activities carried out by either party and verifying complaints of alleged cease-fire violations. United Nations military observers are deployed to ten team sites/observation posts in the northern and southern sectors of the Territory. The team sites, covering the main points of concern in the Territory, are the key element in monitoring the cease-fire. United Nations military observers operate in mobile patrols. Helicopter-borne patrols are also conducted to enhance MINURSO monitoring capability and react at short notice to complaints and violations.

The headquarters of the Mission has been established in the capital, Laayoune, with two regional headquarters in the northern and southern sectors of the Territory. A liaison office has also been established in Tindouf to maintain contact with the Algerian authorities and POLISARIO.

COMPOSITION

MINURSO military observers and headquarters personnel are provided by Argentina, Australia, Austria, Bangladesh, Belgium, Canada, China, Egypt, France, Ghana, Greece, Guinea, Honduras, Ireland, Italy, Kenya, Malaysia, Nigeria, Pakistan, Poland, Russian Federation, Switzerland, Tunisia, United Kingdom, United States and Venezuela.

FINANCIAL ASPECTS

The cost of MINURSO, in its present limited deployment, is estimated at approximately $64 million since its inception. The current monthly cost of the operation is about $2.2 million. The operation is funded by assessed contributions of the United Nations Member States. As at 30 September 1992, total contributions outstanding to the MINURSO Special Account amounted to approximately $21 million.

OTHER ASPECTS

As to the implementation of the settlement plan, it has not been possible to proceed in conformity with the original timetable. While both parties have reiterated their confidence in the United Nations, their commitment to the settlement plan and their willingness to restore the momentum of the peace process, they continue to have divergent views and different interpretations of some of the key elements contained in the plan, including those with regard to the question of criteria for eligibility to vote in the referendum.

In his 28 February 1992 report to the Security Council, the Secretary-General appealed to the parties to engage in every effort to cooperate with the United Nations and enable it to play a full role in the search for mutually acceptable solutions. Since his appointment in April 1992, the Secretary-General's new Special Representative for Western Sahara, Mr. Sahabzada Yaqub-Khan, has held several rounds of talks with each of the parties in an effort to reactivate the settlement plan. Current talks are aimed at reconciling differences over the interpretation of the criteria for eligibility to vote which were enunciated by the Secretary-General in his 19 December 1991 report to the Security Council.

UNPROFOR IN CROATIA

Background

The United Nations became actively involved in the situation in Yugoslavia (a term which, for the purposes of this publication, is used to signify the republics of the former Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia) on 25 September 1991 when the Security Council, meeting at the ministerial level, unanimously adopted its resolution 713 (1991) expressing deep concern at the fighting in that country and calling on all States to implement immediately a "general and complete embargo on all deliveries of weapons and military equipment to Yugoslavia". The Council commended and fully supported the efforts already undertaken by the European Community and its member States, with the support of the States participating in the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe (CSCE), to restore peace and dialogue in Yugoslavia. By its resolution, the Council invited the Secretary-General to offer his assistance, in consultation with the Government of Yugoslavia and all those promoting the peace efforts. On 8 October 1991, the Secretary-General appointed Mr. Cyrus Vance, former United States Secretary of State, as his Personal Envoy for Yugoslavia.

As part of the collective effort to stop the fighting and to find a peaceful solution to the conflict, the Secretary-General's Personal Envoy undertook several missions to Yugoslavia and discussed with all parties concerned the feasibility of deploying a United Nations peace-keeping operation in Yugoslavia. On 23 November, the Personal Envoy convened in Geneva a meeting which was attended by the Presidents of Serbia and of Croatia and the Secretary of State for National Defence of Yugoslavia, as well as Lord Carrington, then Chairman of the European Community's Conference on Yugoslavia. During the meeting, the Yugoslav parties reached agreement on an immediate cease-fire and a number of other issues. Each of the Yugoslav parties expressed the wish to see the speedy establishment of a United Nations peace-keeping operation. However, while progress was made on the other issues, the cease-fire broke down almost immediately.

On 27 November, the Security Council, by its resolution 721 (1991), approved the efforts of the Secretary-General and his Personal Envoy. During subsequent weeks of intensive negotiations with the parties concerned, the implementation of the Geneva agreement was pursued and the general principles were defined for a United Nations peace-keeping operation. On 15 December, the Security Council, by its resolution 724 (1991), approved the Secretary-General's report which contained a plan for a possible peace-keeping operation. A small group of military officers, civilian police and United Nations Secretariat staff travelled to Yugoslavia to carry forward preparations for the implementation of this plan.

Thereafter the Secretary-General and his Personal Envoy focused their efforts on consolidating the cease-fire and on securing unconditional acceptance of the United Nations plan by all parties to the conflict, including assurances of their readiness to cooperate fully in its implementation. On 2 January 1992, the Personal Envoy convened, in Sarajevo, a meeting between military representatives of the Republic of Croatia and representatives of the Yugoslav People's Army (JNA), at which an Implementing Accord on the unconditional cease-fire was signed. With the Security Council's concurrence, the Secretary-General then sent to Yugoslavia a group of military liaison officers, with the task of using their good offices to promote maintenance of the cease-fire. In the meantime, the Personal Envoy, the United Nations Under-Secretary-General for Peace-keeping Operations and their team continued their efforts to secure the cooperation of all Yugoslav parties in implementing the United Nations plan for a peace-keeping operation.

Establishment of UNPROFOR

On 15 February 1992, after all parties concerned had confirmed their full and unconditional acceptance of the plan, the Secretary-General recommended to the Security Council the establishment of a United Nations Protection Force (UNPROFOR) in Yugoslavia. On 21 February, the Security Council, by its resolution 743 (1992), approved the report and established UNPROFOR for an initial period of 12 months. The Council confirmed that the Force should be an interim arrangement to create the conditions of peace and security required for the negotiation of an overall settlement of the Yugoslav crisis within the framework of the European Community's Conference on Yugoslavia.

Concept of operations and structure

UNPROFOR is deployed in three "United Nations Protected Areas" (UNPAs) in Croatia – in Eastern Slavonia, Western Slavonia and Krajina – which, for United Nations purposes, were divided into four sectors: East, North, South and West. The UNPAs are areas in which Serbs constitute the majority or a substantial minority of the population and where inter-communal tensions have led to armed conflict in the recent past. The deployment plan rests on two central elements: the withdrawal of JNA from all of Croatia and the complete demilitarization of the UNPAs; and the continuing functioning, on an interim basis, of the existing local authorities and police, under United Nations supervision, pending the achievement of an overall political solution to the Yugoslav crisis.

As originally conceived, UNPROFOR's mandate is to ensure that the UNPAs are demilitarized, through the withdrawal or disbandment of all armed forces in them, and that all persons residing in them are protected from fear of armed attack. To this end, UNPROFOR is authorized to control access to the UNPAs, to ensure that they remain demilitarized, and to monitor the functioning of the local police there to help ensure non-discrimination and the protection of human rights. Outside the UNPAs, UNPROFOR military observers are to verify the withdrawal of all JNA and irregular forces from Croatia, other than those disbanded and demobilized there. In support of the work of the United Nations humanitarian agencies, the Force will also facilitate the return, in conditions of safety and security, of civilian displaced persons to their homes in the UNPAs. UNPROFOR initially established its headquarters in Sarajevo, the capital of Bosnia and Herzegovina; it is now headquartered in Zagreb, the capital of Croatia.

From March to September 1992, there were two enlargements of the UNPROFOR's mandate in Croatia – in June, to include monitoring of certain areas in Croatia (the so-called "pink zones") falling within the JNA lines and now populated largely by Serbs, but which were outside the agreed UNPA boundaries; and in August, to enable UNPROFOR to control the entry of civilians into the UNPAs and to perform immigration and customs functions at the UNPA borders at international frontiers.

UNPROFOR IN BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA

Background

In April 1992, the situation in Bosnia and Herzegovina rapidly deteriorated. In a series of resolutions, the Security Council appealed to all parties to bring about a cease-fire and a negotiated political solution, and demanded, inter alia, that all forms of interference from outside Bosnia and Herzegovina, including by the JNA, as well as by the Croatian Army, cease immediately and that all local irregular forces be disbanded and disarmed. In May, however, despite all diplomatic efforts by the European Community, the Secretary-General's representatives and UNPROFOR, the conflict continued to intensify. In order to focus on the implementation of its mandate in Croatia, the bulk of UNPROFOR's headquarters personnel withdrew from Sarajevo on 16 and 17 May, leaving behind some 100 military personnel and civilian staff who lent their good offices to promote local cease-fires and humanitarian activities.

On 30 May, acting under Chapter VII of the Charter, the Security Council, in its resolution 757 (1992), imposed wide-ranging sanctions on Yugoslavia (which now consists of Serbia and Montenegro) in order to help achieve a peaceful solution to the conflict. It also demanded that all parties create the conditions necessary for unimpeded delivery of humanitarian supplies to Sarajevo and other destinations in Bosnia and Herzegovina, including the establishment of a security zone encompassing Sarajevo and its airport. The Council requested the Secretary-General to continue to use his good offices to achieve this objective.

Security arrangements at Sarajevo airport

In keeping with the Council's request, UNPROFOR pursued negotiations with the parties to the conflict with the aim to stop the fighting around the airport and to reopen it for humanitarian purposes. On 6 June, the Secretary-General reported to the Council that UNPROFOR had negotiated, on 5 June, an agreement for the handing over to the Force of Sarajevo airport. On 8 June, the Security Council approved the enlargement of the UNPROFOR's mandate and authorized the Secretary-General to deploy military observers and related personnel and equipment to Sarajevo to supervise the withdrawal of anti-aircraft weapons and the concentration of heavy weapons at agreed locations in the city.

Following intensive work by UNPROFOR to establish modalities of implementation of the 5 June agreement, the Secretary-General reported to the Security Council, on 29 June, that Bosnian Serb forces had been withdrawing from the Sarajevo airport, and both sides – the Serb and the Bosnian Presidential forces – had begun to concentrate their heavy weapons in locations to be supervised by UNPROFOR. On the same day, the Council, by its resolution 761 (1992), authorized deployment of additional elements of UNPROFOR to ensure the security and functioning of the airport. By 3 July, despite continued fighting in the area, United Nations observers and troops were deployed at the airport and at other locations at Sarajevo, and the airport was reopened for humanitarian airlift.

Protection of humanitarian convoys

On 10 September, following consultations with a number of Governments, the Secretary-General submitted a further report to the Security Council recommending the expansion of UNPROFOR's mandate and strength in Bosnia and Herzegovina. He proposed that UNPROFOR's task, under its enlarged mandate, would be to support efforts by the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) to deliver humanitarian relief throughout Bosnia and Herzegovina, and in particular to provide protection, at UNHCR's request, where and when UNHCR considered such protection necessary. In addition, UNPROFOR could be used to protect convoys of released civilian detainees if the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) so requested and if the Force Commander agreed that the request was practicable. UNPROFOR would be deployed in four or five new zones. In each zone there would be an infantry battalion group, whose headquarters would also include civilian staff to undertake political and information functions and liaison with UNHCR. UNPROFOR troops would follow normal peace-keeping rules of engagement, which authorize them to use force in self-defence, including situations in which armed persons attempt by force to prevent them from carrying out their mandate.

On 14 September, the Security Council adopted its resolution 776 (1992) approving the Secretary-General's report and authorizing the enlargement of UNPROFOR's mandate and strength in Bosnia and Herzegovina for these purposes.

LONDON CONFERENCE

In the meantime, further diplomatic efforts to find political solution to the conflict in the former Yugoslavia resulted in the convening of an international conference which brought together a broad cross-section of the international community, as well as all parties concerned from the former Yugoslavia. The International Conference on the former Yugoslavia, held in London on 26 and 27 August 1992, was co-chaired by the United Nations Secretary-General and by the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom in his capacity as current President of the Council of Ministers of the European Community. The Conference adopted the Statement of Principles for a negotiated settlement of the problems of the former Yugoslavia, and reached a number of other agreements. It also established, under the overall direction of the Permanent Co-Chairmen of the Conference, a Steering Committee co-chaired by the Secretary-General's Personal Envoy, Mr. Vance, and Lord Owen, newly appointed European Community mediator, who will direct six Working Groups and prepare the basis for a general settlement and associated measures. They will work in continuous session at the United Nations Office at Geneva, starting on 18 September 1992.

COMPOSITION OF UNPROFOR

UNPROFOR includes military, police and civilian components comprising at full strength a total of some 20,000 personnel when deployment in Bosnia and Herzegovina is complete.

Currently, the military component at maximum strength consists of 12 infantry battalions (some 10,400 all ranks) in Croatia; three infantry battalions (some 1,500 all ranks) in Sarajevo; headquarters, logistics and other support elements totalling about 3,000 all ranks; and some 230 military observers. The police component comprises approximately 570 police monitors, and the civilian component is to number about 500 personnel.

In addition, the following elements are being deployed throughout the territory of Bosnia and Herzegovina: four infantry battalion groups (about 4,500 to 5,000 all ranks); a transportation battalion of some 500 all ranks; logistics, signals, engineering and other support elements totalling some 1,200 all ranks; 80 military observers; and approximately 80 civilian personnel.

As of 30 September 1992, the military personnel of UNPROFOR was provided by the following 30 countries: Argentina, Australia, Bangladesh, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Colombia, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Egypt, Finland, France, Ghana, Ireland, Jordan, Kenya, Luxembourg, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nigeria, Norway, Poland, Portugal, Russian Federation, Sweden, Switzerland, Ukraine, United Kingdom and Venezuela.

FINANCIAL ASPECTS

The Secretary-General initially estimated that the cost to the United Nations associated with the emplacement and maintenance of UNPROFOR for an initial twelve-month period would be over $600 million. The costs of the operation were to be met by assessed contributions from United Nations Member States. However, the expansions to the mandate and strength of UNPROFOR referred to above will necessitate a significant upward revision of this figure.

The General Assembly has appropriated an initial amount of $251.5 million for the expenses of the Force. As at 31 August 1992, contributions outstanding to the UNPROFOR Special Account amounted to approximately $73 million.

As far as the protection of humanitarian convoys is concerned, military personnel, equipment and logistic support for UNPROFOR are expected to be provided at no cost to the United Nations by the contributing countries.

UNITED NATIONS TRANSITIONAL AUTHORITY IN CAMBODIA

LOCATION: Cambodia

HEADQUARTERS: Phnom Penh

DURATION: March 1992 - to date

STRENGTH: 15,000 to 20,000 military and civilian personnel (actual numbers to vary according to the phase of operations)

FATALITIES: 10

SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE OF THE SECRETARY-GENERAL AND HEAD OF MISSION: Mr. Yasushi Akashi (Japan)

FORCE COMMANDER: Lieutenant-General John M. Sanderson (Australia)

BACKGROUND

The Agreement on a Comprehensive Political Settlement of the Cambodia Conflict, which entered into force on 23 October 1991, invited the Security Council to establish the United Nations Transitional Authority in Cambodia (UNTAC) and to provide it with the mandate set forth in the Agreement. The Council fully supported the Agreement in its resolution 718 (1991) of 31 October 1991, and requested the Secretary-General to prepare a detailed plan of implementation.

Under the Agreement, the Supreme National Council of Cambodia (SNC) is "the unique legitimate body and source of authority in which, throughout the transitional period, the sovereignty, independence and unity of Cambodia are enshrined". The SNC, which is made up of the four Cambodian factions and is under the chairmanship of Prince Norodom Sihanouk, has delegated to the United Nations "all powers necessary" to ensure the implementation of the Agreement. The transitional period commences with the entry into force of the Agreement and terminates when the constituent assembly elected in conformity with the Agreement has approved the new Cambodian Constitution and transformed itself into a legislative assembly, and thereafter a new Cambodian Government has been created.

Prior to the establishment and deployment of UNTAC, the Secretary-General had, on 30 September 1991, recommended that the United Nations deploy a small advance mission in Cambodia to assist the Cambodian parties to maintain the cease-fire. Based on this recommendation, the Security Council, by its resolution 717 (1991) of 16 October 1991, decided to establish the United Nations Advance Mission in Cambodia (UNAMIC) immediately after the signing of the Agreement. UNAMIC became operational on 9 November 1991. It consisted of civilian and military liaison staff, a military mine-awareness unit, and logistics and support personnel. On 8 January 1992, by its resolution 728 (1992), the Council expanded the mandate of UNAMIC to include training in mine-clearance for Cambodians and the initiation of a mine-clearance programme.

ESTABLISHMENT OF UNTAC

On 19 February 1992, the Secretary-General submitted to the Security Council a report containing his proposed implementation plan. The Council approved that report and, by its resolution 745 (1992) of 28 February, established UNTAC under its authority for a period not to exceed 18 months. Upon becoming operational on 15 March 1992, UNTAC absorbed UNAMIC.

UNTAC's strength varies according to the phase of operations, with between 15,000 and 20,000 military and civilian personnel present at the peak time. In addition, UNTAC international staff will be supplemented by tens of thousands of locally recruited staff, most of them during elections. UNTAC is headed by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General, Mr. Yasushi Akashi (Japan). Headquarters personnel include executive management, a coordination and liaison team, political, legal and economic advisers, an information service and support staff.

UNTAC'S COMPONENTS

UNTAC consists of seven distinct components.

Human rights component

The Agreement gives UNTAC the responsibility during the transitional period for fostering an environment in which respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms is ensured. UNTAC's activities in this regard comprise three aspects: a human rights education programme; general human rights oversight in all existing administrative structures in Cambodia; and a mechanism for the investigation of allegations of human rights abuses occurring during the transitional period.

Civil administration component

In order to ensure a neutral political environment conducive to free and fair general elections, UNTAC is to exercise direct control over existing administrative structures acting in the field of foreign affairs, national defence, finance, public security and information. UNTAC exercises, as determined in consultation with SNC, a lesser degree of scrutiny over other administrative structures that could influence the outcome of the elections. The component also comprises an office for training and an office for complaints and investigation.

The human rights and civil administration components consist of specialists, assisted by international support staff. They operate at the central level, from offices established at the 21 provincial and municipal centres and, particularly as regards dissemination of information and civic education, from offices at all of the estimated 200 districts in the country.

Electoral component

The Agreement entrusts UNTAC with the organization and conduct of free and fair general elections in Cambodia. UNTAC is to establish, in consultation with SNC, a legal framework including an electoral law and regulations to govern the electoral process and an electoral code of conduct. Other aspects include civic education and training, registration of voters and political parties, and the polling process itself. The Special Representative is assisted in these responsibilities by a chief electoral officer. An Electoral Advisory Committee will be appointed by the Special Representative to ensure the prevention and control of election irregularities. International staff include: electoral personnel at headquarters; personnel at the 21 provincial offices, responsible for electoral operations, information, training, communications, compliance and complaints, and coordination; and district electoral supervisors at approximately 200 district offices. Their number will be augmented by approximately 1,000 international personnel seconded from Governments during the polling process.

Military component

The military component, headed by a Force Commander, is charged with the following main functions: verification of the withdrawal from Cambodia and non-return of all categories of foreign forces and their arms and equipment; supervision of the cease-fire and related measures, including regroupment, cantonment, disarming and demobilization of forces of the Cambodian parties; weapons control, including monitoring the cessation of outside military assistance, locating and confiscating caches of weapons and military supplies throughout Cambodia, storing of the arms and equipment of the cantoned and the demobilized military forces; assisting with mine-clearance, including training programmes and mine awareness programmes. In addition, the military component is charged with undertaking investigations, on complaint from one of the parties or on its own, of alleged non-compliance with any of the provisions relating to military arrangements, and to provide assistance in relation to the release of prisoners of war and in the repatriation of Cambodian refugees and displaced persons.

At maximum strength during the peak of its activity, the military component of UNTAC is to comprise about 15,900 all ranks, including force headquarters and sector headquarters staff; military observer group; infantry; engineer element; air support group; signals unit; medical unit; military police; logistic battalion; and naval element.

Police component

UNTAC civilian police monitors supervise or control the local civil police in order to ensure that law and order are maintained effectively and impartially, and that human rights and fundamental freedoms are fully protected. The structure of the UNTAC civilian police component includes a policy and management unit at headquarters, 21 units at the provincial level and 200 district-level units. There will be a total of about 3,600 UNTAC civilian police monitors.

Repatriation component

The repatriation and resettlement of Cambodian refugees and displaced persons is to be an inter-agency effort, with the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) designated as the lead agency. It includes the movement of returnees, the provision of immediate assistance and food, and a reintegration programme. The component is headed by a Director for repatriation, appointed by the Secretary-General and reporting to the Special Representative as well as to the High Commissioner.

Rehabilitation component

The rehabilitation effort is headed by a Coordinator appointed by the Secretary-General and reporting to the Special Representative. He is to ensure efficient and effective coordination, make ongoing assessments of needs, and ensure that they are being met without duplication or overlap. Particular attention will be given to food security, health, housing, training, education, the transport network and the restoration of Cambodia's basic infrastructure and public utilities. In addition, the Coordinator has responsibilities related to raising resources through donor contributions.

UNTAC ACTIVITIES

Military aspects

UNTAC became operational on 15 March 1992. Following an April visit to Cambodia, the Secretary-General reported to the Security Council that although there were some delays in deployment, UNTAC had begun to establish itself both politically and militarily with success reported in each aspect of the mission. On 9 May, UNTAC announced that Phase II of the cease-fire (cantonment and demobilization phase) would begin on 13 June 1992. However, in the days preceding the announcement, it became clear that one of the Cambodian parties – the Party of Democratic Kampuchea (PDK) – was not cooperating. In fact, PDK refused to allow UNTAC forces to proceed with their deployment in the areas under its control and did not provide the necessary information on number of troops and matériel in compliance with the Paris Agreement. In explanation of its position, PDK introduced its own interpretation of the provisions of the Paris Agreement relating to the verification of the withdrawal and non-return of foreign forces and to the role and powers of the SNC.

In a 12 June special report to the Security Council, the Secretary-General stated that despite lack of co-operation from PDK he had concluded that Phase II must proceed as scheduled on 13 June. In his view, any delay would result in a loss of the momentum and would jeopardize UNTAC's ability to organize and conduct elections by April or May 1993. The Council endorsed the Secretary-General's position and called upon all parties to comply strictly with the commitments they have accepted, including cooperation with UNTAC.

At the Ministerial Conference on the Rehabilitation and Reconstruction of Cambodia, held at Tokyo on 22 June 1992, an informal "proposal for discussion" was drawn up. This proposal sets out a number of measures designed to meet some of the concerns expressed by PDK and thus to facilitate its participation in the full implementation of the Paris Agreement without further delay. In a series of meetings of the SNC, three of the Cambodian parties accepted the proposal for discussion. However, PDK did not; instead, it introduced its own proposals.

Since the actions of PDK have seriously compromised the ability of UNTAC to adhere to the timetable, the Secretary-General, in his 14 July report to the Security Council, offered two possible courses of action: to suspend the operation until all parties comply with the Paris Agreement, or to pursue the process, thus demonstrating the international community's determination to assist the Cambodian people despite lack of cooperation from PDK. As the Secretary-General thought the latter would be the most appropriate, he requested his Special Representative to press forward with the regroupment and cantonment process, in a manner that would ensure that the parties cooperating with UNTAC did not suffer a military disadvantage vis-à-vis PDK. He noted, however, that this process, with the cooperation of only three of the parties, could not continue indefinitely. Further efforts would therefore have to be made by all concerned to persuade PDK to join Phase II of the cease-fire and cooperate with UNTAC.

By resolution 766 (1992) of 21 July, the Security Council approved the efforts of the Secretary-General to continue to implement the Paris Agreement despite the difficulties and demanded that PDK permit the deployment of UNTAC in the areas under its control and implement Phase II of the cease-fire, as well as other aspects of the Agreement. It also requested the Secretary-General to ensure that international assistance to the rehabilitation and reconstruction of Cambodia from now on only benefit the parties which are fulfilling their obligations under the Agreement and cooperating fully with UNTAC.

Other aspects

Although UNTAC has been denied access to operate in the zones controlled by PDK, much progress has been achieved on many fronts. On 2 July, the Special Representative announced that, in accordance with the Paris Agreement, the civil administration component of UNTAC had begun to exercise direct control over the existing administrative structures in the following five areas: foreign affairs, national defence, finance, public security and information. UNTAC has opened provincial offices throughout Cambodia and UNTAC civilian police monitors have been deployed to supervise the fair and impartial enforcement of law and order. Civic and human rights education programmes for the Cambodian population have also been initiated.

As far as the electoral process is concerned, the Special Representative signed, on 13 August, the United Nations Electoral Law for Cambodia. The provisional registration of political parties commenced a few days later and the voter registration process is expected to begin in early October. As required by the Paris Agreement, the content of the Electoral Law was determined in consultation with the SNC.

On 28 August, UNHCR announced that the number of Cambodians repatriated from camps in Thailand and from Indonesia and Malaysia surpassed 100,000. While approximately 250,000 refugees and displaced persons remain in camps outside the country, the rate of repatriation has been rising steadily since the first returnees crossed the Thai-Cambodian border on 30 March 1992.

COMPOSITION

UNTAC military and/or civilian police personnel are provided by Algeria, Argentina, Australia, Austria, Bangladesh, Belgium, Bulgaria, Cameroon, Canada, Chile, China, Colombia, Egypt, Fiji, France, Germany, Ghana, Hungary, India, Indonesia, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Jordan, Kenya, Malaysia, Morocco, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nigeria, Norway, Pakistan, Philippines, Poland, Russian Federation, Senegal, Singapore, Sweden, Thailand, Tunisia, United Kingdom, United States and Uruguay.

FINANCIAL ASPECTS

The total cost of UNAMIC for the period 1 November 1991 to 14 March 1992 was approximately $20 million. The total cost of UNTAC for the period 15 March 1992 to 31 July 1993 has been estimated at approximately $1,700 million. The General Assembly has appropriated an amount of some $840 million for the expenses of UNAMIC and UNTAC, through 31 October 1992. As at 31 August 1992, contributions outstanding to the UNAMIC and UNTAC Special Accounts amounted to approximately $352 million.

In addition, repatriation and resettlement of refugees, as well as rehabilitation assistance, will be funded from voluntary contributions. At the Ministerial Conference on the Rehabilitation and Reconstruction of Cambodia, some $880 million was pledged for these activities.

UNITED NATIONS OPERATION IN SOMALIA

LOCATION: Somalia

HEADQUARTERS: Mogadishu

DURATION: April 1992 - to date

AUTHORIZED STRENGTH: 50 military observers, 3,500 security personnel, up to 719 logistic support personnel and some 200 international civilian staff

SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE OF THE SECRETARY-GENERAL: Mr. Mohammed Sahnoun (Algeria)

CHIEF MILITARY OBSERVER: Brigadier-General Imtiaz Shaheen (Pakistan)

BACKGROUND

Since November 1991, heavy fighting between two Somali factions – one supporting Interim President Ali Mahdi Mohamed and the other supporting the Chairman of the United Somali Congress (USC), General Mohamed Farah Aidid – has persisted in the capital city of Somalia, Mogadishu. In addition, other heavily armed elements control various parts of the city, including the seaport and the airport. Some have declared alliance with one or the other of the two factions, while others have not. The fighting has resulted in widespread death and destruction, forcing hundreds of thousands of civilians to flee the city and causing dire need for emergency humanitarian assistance. Furthermore, the conflict has threatened stability in the Horn of Africa region and its continuation has occasioned threats to international peace and security in the area.

UNITED NATIONS EFFORTS

Concerned by the situation in Somalia, the United Nations Secretary-General, in cooperation with the Organization of African Unity (OAU), the League of Arab States (LAS) and the Organization of the Islamic Conference (OIC), has pressed for a peaceful solution to the conflict. In early January 1992, despite continued fighting in Mogadishu, the Secretary-General's envoy, Under-Secretary-General James O.C. Jonah, led a team of senior United Nations officials into the city for talks aimed at bringing about a cessation of hostilities and securing access by the international relief community to civilians caught in the conflict. The results of the visit were reported to the Secretary-General who, on 20 January, reiterated his deep concern at the escalating violence in Mogadishu. He then conducted consultations with the members of the Security Council on the appropriate course of action to take in this regard.

On 23 January 1992, by its resolution 733 (1992), the Security Council, meeting at the request of Somalia, urged all parties to the conflict to cease hostilities, and decided that all States should immediately implement a general and complete embargo on all deliveries of weapons and military equipment to Somalia. The Council requested the Secretary-General to increase humanitarian assistance to the affected population, and to contact all parties involved in the conflict, to seek their commitment to the cessation of hostilities, to promote a cease-fire and to assist in the process of a political settlement of the conflict.

On 31 January, the Secretary-General invited LAS, OAU and OIC, as well as Interim President Mohamed and General Aidid to send their representatives to participate in consultations in New York. The talks, which were held at United Nations Headquarters on 12-14 February, succeeded in getting the two factions in Mogadishu to agree to an immediate cessation of hostilities and the maintenance of the cease-fire, and to the visit to Mogadishu of a joint high-level delegation composed of representatives of the United Nations and the three regional organizations to conclude a cease-fire.

The joint delegation arrived in Mogadishu on 29 February 1992. On 3 March, after four days of intensive negotiations, Interim President Mohamed and General Aidid each signed a copy of an "Agreement on the Implementation of a Cease-fire", in the presence of the representatives of the United Nations, LAS, OAU and OIC. At the same time, the delegation undertook consultations with the two warring factions and secured their agreement and support for a national reconciliation conference to which all Somali groups would be invited. The delegation also held consultations on this matter with several other Somali groups and individuals.

On 17 March, the Security Council adopted its resolution 746 (1992) supporting the Secretary-General's decision to dispatch to Somalia a United Nations technical team to prepare a plan for a cease-fire monitoring mechanism. The Council also requested that the team develop a high-priority plan to ensure the delivery of humanitarian assistance.

The Team visited Somalia from 23 March to 1 April. Following discussions with the Team, Interim President Mohamed and General Aidid signed on 28 and 27 March 1992, respectively, Letters of Agreement on the mechanisms for monitoring the cease-fire and arrangements for equitable and effective distribution of humanitarian assistance. The Team estimated that the lives of 1.5 million people in various parts of the country were seriously threatened by lack of access to food and health care provision. A further 3.5 million Somalis were also in urgent need of humanitarian assistance.

ESTABLISHMENT OF UNOSOM

On 21 April 1992, on the basis of the Team's report, the Secretary-General recommended to the Security Council that it set up a United Nations Operation in Somalia (UNOSOM). On 24 April, the Council, by its resolution 751 (1992), decided to establish UNOSOM. The Council also asked the Secretary-General, in cooperation with the three regional organizations, to pursue consultations with all Somali parties toward convening a Conference on national reconciliation and unity. It also called on the international community for financial and other support for the Secretary-General's 90-day Plan of Action for Emergency Humanitarian Assistance to Somalia. The Council welcomed the Secretary-General's intention to appoint a Special Representative for Somalia to provide overall direction of United Nations activities in that country. Mr. Mohammed Sahnoun of Algeria was appointed Special Representative on 28 April and left for the area on 1 May 1992.

UNOSOM'S CONCEPT OF OPERATIONS

In accordance with the agreements reached with the two main Somali factions in Mogadishu, the cease-fire in the capital is to be monitored by a group of 50 unarmed uniformed United Nations military observers. The observers are to be deployed along the demarcation line separating Mogadishu into two zones. As regards humanitarian assistance, the security personnel envisaged in the agreements is to provide protection and security for United Nations personnel, equipment and supplies at the port of Mogadishu and escort deliveries of humanitarian supplies from there to distribution centres in the city and its immediate environs. They are also to provide security for United Nations personnel, equipment and supplies at the airport in Mogadishu. They are to provide the United Nations convoys of relief supplies with a sufficiently strong military escort to deter attack; they are authorized to fire in self-defence as a last resort if deterrence should not prove effective. Under the Agreements, the United Nations was to consult with the two parties about the strength of the security personnel before the plan was finalized.

In its resolution 751 (1992), the Security Council requested the Secretary-General to deploy immediately 50 observers to monitor the cease-fire in Mogadishu. It also agreed, in principle, to establish a security force to be deployed as soon as possible. In this regard, the Council requested the Secretary-General to continue his consultations with the parties in Mogadishu regarding the proposed security force and to submit his further recommendations to the Council for its decision.

On 23 June, the Secretary-General informed the Security Council that both principal factions in Mogadishu had agreed to the immediate deployment of the unarmed observers. The Chief Military Observer and the advance party of UNOSOM observers arrived in Mogadishu in early July 1992. On 12 August, the Secretary-General informed the Security Council that, after considerable delays and difficulties, agreement had been reached with the principal faction leaders in Mogadishu to deploy 500 United Nations security personnel in the capital as part of UNOSOM. He also informed the Council of his intention to proceed with the deployment of the force as soon as possible.

FURTHER DEVELOPMENTS

Between 4 May and 19 July 1992, the Secretary-General's Special Representative undertook extensive consultations with various Somali leaders and Elders and other personalities throughout the country. On 22

July, the Secretary-General submitted a further report to the Council, in which he described the complex political and security situation in Somalia, as well as the desperate situation the country faced in terms of needs for humanitarian assistance, recovery programmes and institution-building. In his report, the Secretary-General concluded that the United Nations must "adapt" its involvement in Somalia and that its efforts needed to be enlarged in order to bring about an effective cease-fire throughout the country, while at the same time promoting national reconciliation. He proposed to establish four operational zones: the north-west, the north-east, the central rangelands and Mogadishu, and the south. In each of the zones a consolidated United Nations operation would carry out the following primary activities: humanitarian relief and recovery programmes; monitoring of the cease-fire and containment of potential hostilities; security, demobilization and disarmament; the peace process and national reconciliation efforts through conciliation, mediation and good offices.

On 27 July, the Security Council approved the Secretary-General's proposal and urged all parties, movements and factions in Somalia to facilitate United Nations efforts to provide urgent humanitarian assistance to the affected population. The Council strongly supported the Secretary-General's decision to dispatch another technical team to Somalia.

ENLARGEMENT OF UNOSOM

Following the technical team's visit to Somalia on 6-15 August, the Secretary-General submitted his further report, dated 24 August, to the Security Council, in which he recommended the deployment of four additional United Nations security units, each with a strength of up to 750, for the protection of the humanitarian convoys and distribution centres throughout Somalia. Two of these would serve in the north-east and the south-west. The others would be deployed in the north-west and the south-east.

Also, in accordance with his earlier proposal, the Secretary-General recommended the establishment of four zone headquarters of UNOSOM. Each would be headed by a civilian official who would assist the Secretary-General's Special Representative in all aspects of his duties.

On 28 August, the Security Council, by its resolution 775 (1992), approved the Secretary-General's report and authorized the increase in strength of UNOSOM. It urged, inter alia, all parties, movements and factions in Somalia to facilitate the efforts of the United Nations, its specialized agencies and humanitarian organizations. The Council also requested the Secretary-General to continue, in close cooperation with LAS, OAU and OIC, his efforts to seek a comprehensive solution to the crisis in Somalia.

On 8 September, the Security Council also approved the Secretary-General's plan to deploy three logistic units totalling up to 719 personnel to support the enhanced UNOSOM operation.

The first group of security personnel arrived in Mogadishu on 14 September 1992.

COMPOSITION

UNOSOM military observers are provided by the following countries: Austria, Bangladesh, Czechoslovakia, Egypt, Fiji, Finland, Indonesia, Jordan, Morocco and Zimbabwe. Security contingent deployed in Mogadishu is provided by Pakistan. As to the security personnel and logistic support units to be deployed in other parts of the country, the Secretary-General has been consulting the following Governments as prospective troop-contributors: Australia, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, Egypt, Germany, Nigeria, Pakistan, Sweden and Switzerland.

FINANCIAL ASPECTS

The Secretary-General has estimated that the annual cost to the United Nations associated with the emplacement and maintenance of UNOSOM would be approximately $202 million. The costs of the operation are to be met by assessed contributions from United Nations Member States.
